Ithaca Carshare Gets 1,000 Members

Would you be willing to give up having your own car? More and more Ithacans are answering “yes” to that question, as Ithaca Carshare has passed one thousand members.

The service allows members to reserve community cars and avoid the cost of maintenance, gas, and help the environment.

Ithaca Carshare Assistant Director Anna Cook says most of the early growth has come from students looking to avoid having a car on campus, but that upcoming efforts will look to expand the service.

Having reached the thousand member milestone in less than three years, Cook says it’s her goal to see another thousand members join in the next two years.
